The threads of geographical exploration are continuous and, being entwined one with another, are difficult to separate. Three major phases of investigation may nevertheless be distinguished. The first phase is the exploration of the Old World centred on the Mediterranean Sea, the second is the so-called Age of Discovery, during which, in the search for sea routes to Cathay (the name by which ...

Transportation in the Middle Ages was very much based on the methods and innovations that came before. While the Romans showed innovation in building a network of roads across their Empire, the Middle Ages saw a decline in ease and access of transportation. The once prevalent interconnected roads and bridges system collapsed with the fall of Rome and even those roads that remained from the ...

Goin' Ham on Haim. These two pieces — one by Grantland, the other by whatever Collapse Board is — are both trying to untangle each writer's own impossible knots about "pop product" and "indie rock" and "ambition." It's the old "rockism" vs. "popism" debate retrofitted for the think-piece era's narcissism of small differences.
