Historical Metrology A New Analysis

Metrology is the science of measurement. It establishes a common understanding of units, crucial in linking human activities. Modern metrology has its roots in the French Revolution's political motivation to standardise units in France, when a length standard taken from a natural source was proposed. This led to the creation of the decimal-based metric system in 1795, establishing a set of ...

Average and Range Method. The Average and Range method (& R) is an approach which will provide an estimate of both repeatability and reproducibility for a measurement system. Unlike the Range method, this approach will allow the measurement system's variation to be decomposed into two separate components, repeatability and reproducibility.
