I think canapes are a specific type of hors d'oeuvres, which can also be served independently of a meal. A canape is capable of being eaten in a single bite, without the need for cutlery, often served before a meal, but also as the only food at a reception or cocktail party.

How do canapes and hors d'oeuvres differ? - Quora

An hors d'oeuvre (/ ɔːr ' d ʒ:r v (r ə)/; French: hors-d'œuvre [ɔʁ dəœvʁ] ()), appetizer or starter is a small dish served before a meal in European cuisine. Some hors d'oeuvres are served cold, others hot. Hors d'oeuvres may be served at the dinner table as a part of the meal, or they may be served before seating. Formerly, hors d'oeuvres were also served between courses.

Hors d'oeuvre - Wikipedia

Canapes are a type of hors d'oeuvre with a bread, toast or pastry base that can be "finger food" and can also be served as party food, rather than as part of a meal at all. Amuse bouche is a small canape, normally complimentary in a restaurant, and served automatically before you order, with no choice.
