As the semester progressed and I learned more about my design solution, the quality of the models started to evolve. After all design decisions were finalized the very last step of the semester always involved building a museum quality architecture model of my building. Building great architecture models is a skill.

Building Great Architecture Models - Young Architect

the art of making model buildings. The cottage shown above built by Roye England highlights how important it is to mount your buildings on sub boards because it is a lot easier to detail the building exterior on the workbench rather than on the layout itself.
