Justin's Conversion and Writings In a previous program I talked about the persecutions Christians experienced in the early church. One of the striking characteristics of persecuted Christians was the courage they exhibited on their way to execution. In fact, we're told by an adult convert of the early second century that this courage was a factor in making him open to the gospel.

Christian apologist, born at Flavia Neapolis, about A.D. 100, converted to Christianity about A.D. 130, taught and defended the Christian religion in Asia Minor and at Rome, where he suffered martyrdom about the year 165. Two "Apologies" bearing his name and his "Dialogue with the Jew Tryphon" have come down to us. Leo XIII had a Mass and an Office composed in his honour and set his feast for ...

This was a brilliant strategy that kept people from recognizing and appreciating the plan of salvation. Because pagans had similar beliefs of a "resurrection" before Christ, it is much easier to say that Christ's resurrection was just another version of the same old pagan story from long ago that has nothing to do with reality or a plan of salvation of any kind.

In NEWS1675, we revealed that one of the weapons the priests used to get their female penitents to have sex with them was the threat to lie to the Holy Inquisition, so they would be torturously murdered. Since history books have been largely rewritten, few people know specific details of this murderous campaign that lasted over 1,200 years, killing 75 million people
